

Community Service Award Citation: Allison Eacho

Allison Eacho has been chosen by the Selection Committee to receive the 2025 Outstanding Youth Award for Community Service, which she demonstrates through her commitment to volunteerism and devoting herself to helping improve the lives of others.

Allison exemplifies a York County youth dedicated to donating her time and energy to help her community however she can, working with numerous organizations to volunteer and support multiple populations of York County. She has volunteered the past three summers with the York County Parks & Recreation division through their Safety Town Camp, teaching rising Kindergarten students important safety concepts. She has utilized her passion for art to paint murals on her local church and a variety of community schools, and furthermore has volunteered to assist with Middle School aged art classes. She volunteers her time to help Seaford Elementary teachers prepare their classrooms each summer, and to help tutor fellow students in Algebra and AP Statistics.

However, Allison's passion to donate her time does not solely focus on the community, but rather at her local school as well. Allison is a member of the National Art Society, The National History Honor Society, and the National Honor Society. She has played volleyball and basketball throughout her career, and has volunteered at several school events, such as homecoming carnivals and clay and paint nights.

Allison, on behalf of the Board of Supervisors and Youth Commission, we would like to publicly recognize you as the most worthy Outstanding Youth Award recipient for Community Service. We extend our sincere admiration and respect for your exemplary community service. The Board of Supervisors and Youth Commissions' best wishes go with you as you continue to use your time and talents in great service to our community.
