HOSPICE HOUSE OF WILLIAMSBURG

Marc,

When Judy came to the Hospice House, Jasper told me it was the first time he had ever felt comfortable enough to leave her side. He said there was a sweetness in the room and a sense that she was safe and surrounded by love.

This setting of serenity is what your support provides.

Every day, families walk through our doors carrying fear, exhaustion, and heartbreak. What they find here is something different — a quiet place filled with compassion, where loved ones are never alone, and where every moment of life is treated as sacred.

As Jasper said, "You can't put a price on that."

The truth is the care we give has no price tag because of gifts from friends like you. Hospice House receives no federal or state funding. We never send a bill, nor do we receive insurance reimbursements. Each year, your donations make it possible for us to serve wonderful people like Jasper and Judy.

~~I ask you to consider a gift to Hospice House of Williamsburg today to help continue serving families in this most special atmosphere of peace, dignity, and love.~~ this is not an ask. We appreciate your recent gift in October! — I just wanted to share Jasper's story with you. Wishing you all the best this holiday season.
With gratitude,

A Place for Peace When It Matters Most

Hospice House of Williamsburg

"Wherever she went, I would stay in the room with her," he said. "I just couldn't leave." But when Judy came to Hospice House of Williamsburg, something changed.

"They offered me a bed," Jasper remembered. "They told me I could stay as long as I wanted. But there was this calmness, a sweetness in the room—and for the first time, I felt okay to leave. I'd never felt that before, anywhere she'd been."

Judy spent her final days surrounded by love. She was surrounded by her family, her church community, and by the staff and volunteers who treated her with tenderness and dignity. "Everyone seemed genuinely concerned," Jasper said. "It was second nature to them. They gave her care that was individualized, compassionate, and real."

Even the smallest touches mattered: a view of the playground from her room where the children she loved could play, volunteers who understood loss because they'd lived it, and a chaplain who still calls to check in on Jasper.

"I can't quantify the feeling families get from the compassion and care here," he said. "This place gave me peace. It gave Judy peace. You can't put a price on that."

Hospice House of Williamsburg is the only facility of its kind in our community—a home where families can find comfort, dignity, and support at the end of life. Every day, we welcome those who need us, whether for two days or two weeks.

At Hospice House of Williamsburg, families like Jasper and Judy's find more than end-of-life care. They find calm, dignity, and love in life's most tender moments.

Your generosity makes that possible.
